Asha The Hope an opportunity that came early

The internship was for a short period and that period was an eye opener to what councilors go through. This got me to think how it would be if I became a councilor. It also got me interested in psychology as a subject in general. The environment for the classes was super interactive and fun. The teachers who came and thought us made sure everyone participated and made sure that we expressed what we want to tell related to that topic whether it is right or not. They were also very helpful so if u had doubts or read on a topic and want to discuss on it they will definitely help you

This was a very helpful opportunity for me as now I am more curious about things and read a lot more than what we learn at the internship classes. The internship also got me thinking if I should do something related to psychology later

My time (10days) that I spent in the internship was so fun as I learnt about a various topics and different things I never knew about. At the start I felt like it was going to be something like school where we learn theory without it being interesting. When we started the internship, I found out that it was an interactive and open place. Here your peers and teachers don't judge you for what you say and they are open to your thoughts on that topic or point that was being discussed about.

The 10 made me a more knowledgeable person as it got me to think differently on various topic. Example, the one class was on gaslighting and that made me question if what I do to people some times was right and do they like it. The internship made me more curious and a changed person.
